Monthly commentary

August began with Fitch Ratings downgrading the US government's credit rating from AAA to AA+, citing an expected fiscal deterioration over the next years and an erosion of governance. This decision generated volatility in sovereign rates and weighed on risk appetite. The deterioration in sentiment was further accentuated by growing doubts over the recovery of the Chinese economy, which is facing persistent problems in its property market, while survey results point to sluggish manufacturing activity over the past few months. On the inflation front, the latest European data were encouraging, as they seem to confirm that the peak has passed, while inflation continues to fall at a steady pace in the United States.

Against this backdrop, equity markets fell (MSCI World TR in USD: -2.4%), with US indices (S&P 500 TR in USD: -1.5%) outperforming European indices (Euro Stoxx 50 TR in EUR: -3.8%). By sector, energy stocks benefited from the rise in energy prices (Bloomberg Energy Subindex in USD: +1.9%) and ended the month in positive territory (MSCI World Energy TR in USD: +1.9%). The utilities sector posted the biggest fall (MSCI World Utilities: -5.5%) impacted by the growing difficulties encountered this year by many renewable energy players. On the bond markets, sovereign yields fell slightly in Europe (Germany 10-year: -3 bps) but rose in the United States (10-year: +15 bps), more markedly on the long end of the curve due to the sovereign rating downgrade and the rise in growth expectations. As a result, the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Developed Markets bond index hedged in EUR fell by -0.4%. Finally, the dollar appreciated over the month (Bloomberg Dollar Index: +1.7%).

Against this backdrop, YCAP Tactical Investment gave up -1.0%, underperforming its benchmark* (-0.7%) due to its greater exposure to equities. This exposure was further increased during the month on the back of improved growth expectations in the United States, rising from 55% to 61%, as was interest-rate sensitivity, which rose from 2.9 to 3.1.

*Composite index: 50% MSCI World ESG Leaders EUR hedged + 50% Barclays Global Aggregate Developed Markets EUR hedged, daily rebalancing.
